Sylvester Russell's Review

The Avenue Theatre Re-Opens

CHICAGO, Ill., April 21. — The old Avenue Theatre, former home of the Lafayette Players, re-opened anew, under the management of Tom Burley, formerly of Keppins Theatre in Detroit, Monday, April 14, to a crowded house and line up for the second performance. Butterbeans and Susie and their company gave a good show, a lively frolic, and Butterbeans is an old dog who cannot be taught new tricks and Susie sang "nail and wore some dresses. Joe Clark was a blackface demon of fun. Elizabeth Conley, a fair damsel with reddened lips, and Theresie Leggs and the Gibson family of dancing children, George Gould and others, including Tootsie Ball, a contortion dancer, and a chocolate beauty chorus, attracted. Eddie Haywood was leader. Mr. Dudley has shown some real showmanship in initially launching the new enterprise successfully.

Randolph Named for Actors

The latest thing in actor organization movements has just been given out by a New York editor. Whether it was personal friendship or interest in the welfare of actors that prompted the gallant editor to present the name of A. Philip Randolph for its organizer, his known ability or a job solicitation, cannot yet be determined upon. In the first count, does Mr. Randolph know the inside tribulations of actors and if he doesn't he could not take the initiative in rectifying the differences between the actor and the manager. Undoubtedly Mr. Randolph is efficient and even if he does there would have to be a consulting board and committee of the brainiest actors of education. It is true that Mr. Randolph is a good organizer, but in a newer and different field he would have a far different proposition on his hands than the ville iament of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters. If an actors organization should be established in New York City and of national proportions, there is but one available solution to the problem and that is that the heads would have to be appointed in all large cities where actors congregate. Trusting actors cannot be depended upon to pay dues, but every actor should pay to become a member and work for its success. The organization could not be founded upon a graft system and local benefits would have to be regulated. I presume an organization of that kind could be made a grand success, with such men as Irvin C. Miller, president; Jesse A. Shipp, vice president; A. Philip Randolph, manager, organizer, paid from New York, where all benefit receipts would have to be forwarded, except deputies commissions: Homer Tutt, secretary; William Hardy Davis, treasurer, and Salem Tutt Whitney, assistant treasurer.

Woodmen Plan To See 'Scar Of Shame' On Friday Night

All American Woodmen are asked to attend the special showing of the greatest colored screen production, "The Scar of Shame," featuring the beautiful Lucia Moses, Friday night, April 26, at the Elmore Theater on Center avenue.

"The Scare of Shame' is purely racial in tone, exceedingly reverent in feeling and treatment, thrilling in action, gripping from beginning to end."

Esteemed Neighbor:

This comes as a special invitation on the part of the management of the Elmore Theater and the Colored Players' Film Corporation to you to attend the above mentioned special showing of "The Scar of Shame," accompanied by your family and friends.

The manager, Paul Jones, has spared no expense to arrange for your approval a special program in addition to the regular stage attraction, and the above mentioned thrilling, gripping, studendous screen epic.

Bishop's Death Report Unfounded

News that Andrew Bishop, the star lead in the No. 2 company of "Harlem," had dropped dead suddenly before going on the stage in Detroit, Mich., spread like wildfire Telegrams from New York City and every section of the United States flooded the Schubert Lafayette Theater in Detroit, where the No. 2 company is now in its second successful week. Mr. Flynn, the company manager, worked far into the night answering requests for news from anxious relatives and friends. As a matter of fact, Andrew Bishop had not even suffered the slightest indisposition any way since coming to Detroit to play his part as "Red Vamp" in the show.

Members of the cast are also part of our great organization.

May we not depend on you to give them the support and encouragement which only the American Woodman can and do give?

To this end, we urge you to come out and help make another worthy page in the annals of Woodmen history in Pittsburgh.

Thanking you in advance, I am Cordially and fraternally,
THE C. F. F. CORP. AND THE ELMORE THEATER.

Happy Pals Invited To Play In N. Y.

RICHMOND, Va., April 26.—Returning from their recent engagements at Chase City, Va., and at Lakemont Park, the Johnson Happy Pals orchestra have received an invitation from the management of the Savoy ballroom, New York City, to participate in a musical carnival, which will be given the week of May 6 and will bring together the world's greatest symphonic jazz aggregations. The event, which is heralded the musical event of the season, for all of the world assemble to stamp their word of approval upon the world's best.

At this time New York will see Duke Ellington and his Cotton Club orchestra; Fess Williams and his Happy Pals orchestra of Richmond, Va.; Paul Whiteman from Chicago, Ill., and the gang from the Cotton Pickers from Boston, all representative of this "orchestral carnival." These boys have been playing together for the most eight years and have been improving every time, so that at this writing they are at the peak of perfection. Each orchestra is allotted a certain amount of time in which to display their wares to the steppers of the light fantastic, and the one safe bet that when Roy F. Johnson and the Happy Pal Boys take their places on the rostrum and blast forth their peculiar style of melody, as served up in the southern style, those New York "Lindy Hoppers" will be clamoring for dancing space.

Cleveland's "Club Alabam" Opens

By SCOOP

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 22.—This city has at last gained a place in the night club world with the opening of the "Club Alabam" on Euclid in the heart of Cleveland's busiest section at Central avenue and East 13th street, last Saturday night.

Mr. Harry Bowman, well known caterer, is the proprietor and as his name implies, he is one of the best known men in the city in the restaurant line. Edward Wade-ton and A. J. "Tony" Norton, manager and steward respectively. On entering the Club one gets a feeling of comfort and ease, due most from the tones of Underwood's Orchestra who are known the world over in jazz music and also the Cotton Pickers of Chicago by Marie Lucas, appearing at present in Detroit, Mich., Windy City edition, choice dishes are served.

Radical Changes In 'Blackbirds'

In the attempt to keep his sensational "Blackbirds," a sure-fire hit on Broadway, Lew Leslie has been making a number of changes in the recently added Billie Mills in the "Blackbirds" chorus. Miss Mills was with the show when it was withdrawn for a few weeks in order that Miss Leslie might have been becoming somewhat stale. Since the show's return it has been completely overhauled and many changes have been effected. Among the latest changes is the addition of Maintan Moreland to the ranks of the principal members of the cast. Moreland having been with the show from its inception, which by his comedy which by his been dishing up in the show. Moreland has been made to the chorus line-up during his absence. He is expected on Broadway some of the people being with the show when it New York company in the road show.

STAGE FACTS

By MAURICE DANCER

All of Harlem is agog and congratulating Duke Ellington and his boys of the Cotton Club at the opening of Duke Ellington, the jazz maestro of the Cotton Club and his orchestra, who are sharing headline honors this week with the three Mars Brothers and Lauritze Joy at the Palace Theatre. Without a doubt, at present Duke Ellington is the leading orchestra leader of our race today and is the coming Paul Whiteman, and with the melody grooving of his singing drummer, Sonny Greer, this combination has been a continuous success since its opening at Harlem's most exclusive night rendezvous. This is the first engagement that a colored orchestra has played the Palace Theatre and Duke and his boys are tripling this week by their usual broadcasting sessions and at the club. Duke Ellington, also a Victor recording artist, opens June 2 in Philadelphia, with Vincent Youmans' "Horse Shoes" and then comes to Broadway, reassuming his place on Pa Row.

Mamie Smith, the queen of the blues, opens at the Roxy, the world's largest cinema palace, Friday. Mamie is appearing in conjunction with her talkie, "In Jail," that is to have its showing at this theatre on that date. This booking was arranged by her alert manager, Ben Goldberg, and will mark the first appearance of a colored performer in conjunction with their picture at any of New York's Broadway picture palaces.
