Caesar Bashful Playing Himself

By TOM O'MALLEY And BOB CUNIFF

Short shots from both coasts: Contrary to rumors that CBS has put the muzzle on Lanza jokes, two of the network's front-runners, J. Gleason and Ed Murrow, have already put in their two cents.

PIAZZA As a low how in the direction of "Truth," the dream sequence on Monday's "Tonight" spec will be shown in black-and-white while the rest of the show is in tint.

CAESAR HAS NERVES Non-imbibing Sid Caesar was so terrified by the thought of appearing as himself (instead of in TV character) on Person to Person, that he fortified the inner man with a few pre-broadcast hookers.

Multi-divorced John J. Anthony is about to bring his how-to-live-happily-ever-after dreaminess to TV. Latest discovery of the TV snobs is Harold (A Star Is Born)

DEWEY'S PLANS STABILIZED

By LEONARD LYONS

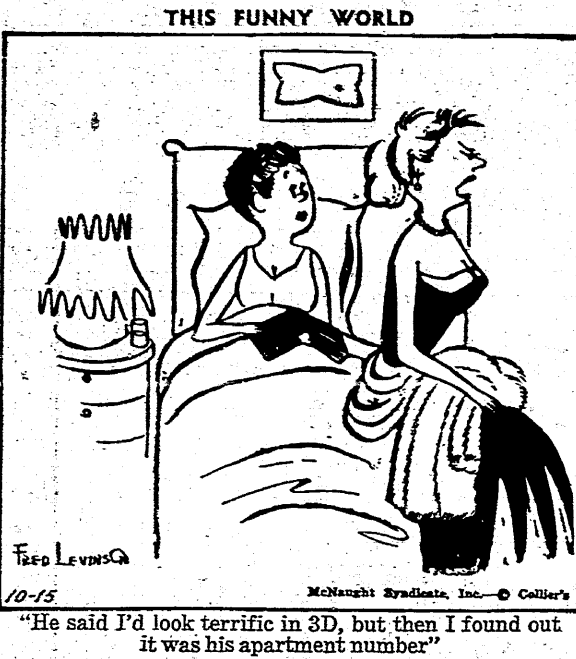

Zachary Scott no longer wears an earring in his left ear. The actor who once said "I wear one earring because two would be ostentatious" gave it up after a series of plane trips last week.

Sugar Ray Robinson, now sprouting a beard, says it's because he lost a World Series bet and that he won't shave for two months. Robinson, who announced that nothing could ever persuade him to fight again, has invited several friends to watch him train for a comeback.

The Brooklyn Dodgers press department sends mimeographed forms to all players on its roster, during the off-season, gathering information which might be useful in hand-outs to the press. Carl Furillo received this form questionnaire, filled it out and returned it. One question was "Hometown" and he wrote "Story Creek Mills, Pa."

Yogi Berra and the Yankees' reserve catcher, Charles Silveira, were at Grossinger's last week-end. They were introduced to Don Dixon, the correspondent who just returned after 18 months imprisonment by the Chinese.

When Mohamed Ali, the Prime Minister of Pakistan, arrived here on the day the World Series ended, he told the press: "This proves the Indians have been overrated." The Indian delegation to the UN was upset by this barb from their foe's spokesman.

"He said I'd look terrific in 3D, but then I found out it was his apartment number."

Another of the great Norman Granz presentations will take over Symphony Hall Sunday night when the Duke Ellington Orchestra and the quartets of Gerry Mulligan, Stan Getz and Dave Brubeck will perform at two concerts at 7 and 10 p. m.

As pianist, composer, arranger and orchestra leader, Ellington has been responsible for much of the best in jazz during the past quarter of a century. In contrast to the swinging Ellington rhythms, the concert will feature the modernistic trends in jazz as interpreted and performed by three of the greatest—Getz, Brubeck, and Mulligan.

The Dorsey Brothers—Jimmy and Tommy—have been in this area recently and we heard the sentimental gentleman, Tommy Dorsey, his trombone and his eye glasses on a few local radio shows.
