MR. AND MRS. SIMON J. CORRA

JoAnne Sperat becomes bride

JoAnne Maria Sperat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter P. Sperat, 368 Queen St., became the bride of Simon Joseph Corra, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Corra, 31 Cherry St., in St. Alvin's Roman Catholic Church.

The Rev. James Farratt, assistant pastor, performed the double ring rites. Music was presented by Marybeth and Jack Mariani, soloists, and Mrs. Eleanor Kurtz, organist.

Given in marriage by their father, the bride was attended by Elizabeth Ennis, Phoenixville, maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Angel O'Connor, Beech St., and Rosalee Drive, and Cheryl Nalasky, Phoenixville.

Tammy Katakah, Bechtelville, was flowergirl for her uncle. Best man was Robert Friend, 373 New St., and ushers included Larry Friend, 373 New St., and Raymond Scheffler, 421 Laurel St.

Gifts were carried to the altar by the bride's sisters, Mrs. Jacqueline Meade, Amity Gardens, Douglassville, Mrs. Geraldine Kelly, 829 High St., and Judith Skypala, 1881 South St.

The bride, a 1973 graduate of St. Pius X High School, is employed as an operating clerk at Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. service store, High Street.

The bridegroom received his high school diploma from the University of Maryland, Germany. He is employed as a grinder at Neapco Products Inc.

Hollywood siren of 1930s returns to mother's role

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty years after her retirement, Bernice Barnes, one of the Hollywood sirens of the 1930s, is back on the screen as Lay Ullman's movie-spirited mother in "49 Cents," a movie version of the Broadway play of the same name.

The picture was produced by her husband of 34 years, M.J. Frankovich, but Miss Barnes says he has nothing to do with her getting the part. "The director and the writer wanted me in it," she said. "My husband didn't know anything about it until I got it. I released some young girls for the part, and they liked my reading, and they wanted me for it."

The London-born actress, remembered for such films as "The Private Life of Henry VIII" and "Man About Town," is now a 65-year-old grandmother of four, but her face is as fresh as that of a milkmaid that she once was - rosy, unblemished and unworked.

"I don't like to see old women with a lot of makeup and a lot of layers of eye-lashes," she said. "I use hardly any makeup. I wash my face with soap and get on with it. Overmakeup, you look much older."

"I haven't had my face lifted yet, but I think I will eventually," Miss Barnes said. "When I reach 80, I live that long, and I think I will. Why not? Facelifting is such a nervous thing. I think every woman should make her best of her face."

How did she feel coming back in front of the camera? "A little nervous to start with, and then the role was such that you can have a very good time doing it - dancing with Gene Kelly, you know - I enjoyed it. It was a little stiff doing the disquette number, but once I got back into it, it's like eating. You don't forget how to eat. I came back and danced and worked again. I was struck by Mrs. Josephine Chitty, centered the buffet table."

Miss Fox will become the bride of Thomas Kricky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kricky, 1213 N. Franklin St., in St. John the Baptist Byzantine Catholic Church Saturday.

has a very young, very modern mind, and has always been very ahead of what's going on. She is not at all shocked by the story of "49 Cents" in which a 39-year-old woman falls in love with a younger man.

"I know an enormous amount of younger men who are married to older women and are terribly happy. Very happy. It's not unusual."

"Two people in love should be able to do whatever they want. But they'd better make sure they have something more than sex between them. Otherwise, when the first impulse is over, everything is over."

The last of 18 children of a London baby, Miss Barnes was brought up on a dairy farm; the family owned and started her show business career in night clubs. One day, Noel Coward came to hear her sing, and picked her for his play, "Cavalcade," making her famous. She later came to Hollywood, made several movies, and in 1940 married Frankovich.

Miss Barnes says she is not embarking on her second acting career. Her life has been very fulfilling and she wants nothing more. "If it sometimes comes up that really suits me, I'll do it," she said.
