NIGHT LIFE

By LEW SHEAFFER

World's Fair Reminder

It never fails. The first-time visitor to Dubson's is bound to make some sort of remark about the World's Fair.

With its frontage of tall, glass windows and ltra-modern interior, the place is strongly reminiscent of the swank eating pavilions at the Flushing Meadow spectacle.

Actually, the restaurant was patterned on the main dining hall of the liner Normandie, according to George Dubrow, chief owner. One entire side of the room is curved and divided into sections with scalloped edges, giving a wave-like effect. Other features of the cheerful decor are walls of old-rose, oyster-white chairs and wall-seats of leather, and flowing draperies 24-feet long.

Both owned by the same family, Dubson's is the tonier sister of Dubrow's well-known cafeteria less than a block away. The restaurant, opened last Summer, soon became a popular spot with jurists, lawyers and political figures. During the season, you're likely to find some of the Dodgers knocking out a homer on a dish of roast beef or steak.

Everything is a la carte at Dubson's, but the prices are reasonable for the quality and generous portions. The cuisine features standard American dishes, with a smaller assortment of kosher-type specialties.

Appetizers range from eight different kinds of seafood cocktails to herring in wine sauce, chopped chicken livers and home-made gefulte fish. For soup, there are yellow split pea, chicken consomme with matzoth balls and onion soup au gratin.

Typical entrees, which change daily, include boiled beef with horse-radish sauce; breaded pork tenderloin, roast turkey, steaks, chops, various broiled fish steaks, lobster in different styles, and a wide variety of salad bowls and cold cuts. Boiled chicken or beef in the pot are house specialties.

The sweet tooth gets ample attention with some fine desserts, especially the cheese cake. It rates with the best in town.

LEW'S TALK . . . Eleanor Roosevelt is a frequent visitor these days to Tammany Hall's "Wigwam" huddles . . . Report from movieland has the feud between those two columnists hotter than ever . . . Gremlins still plaguing the incoming "Beggar's Holiday." Program listed Duke Ellington for the "book" and John La Touche for "music." . . . Walter O'Brien, whose sis Marianne married tobacco heir Richard Reynolds, likes the insurance game. He cornered all the tobacco clan's policies . . . Today's 'mportant item: Velma Madden, L. I. model, downed five pounds of steak in one sitting at Bradley's to cop the lady chowhound title . . . New Yorker returns to ice with a figure-8 show the day after Xmas . . . Gertrude Niesen reported set for Zanzibar when it goes off the sepia-standard. Franklin Hughes will redecorate . . . Lilo Pike, daughter of Ruby Foo's boss, singer-debuts out of town next month with Broadway-here-I-come hope . . . Boroite Eddie Manson to introduce an electricity-run harmonica at a concert in February . . . With its colonies fighting for freedom, Larry Finley insists the line should be: "Rule Britannia—Britannia rules the slaves!"

Gertrude Niesen

SHAVINGS . . . No comment needed: One of Prohibition Era's toughest gunmen seen working behind a B'way shooting gallery counter . . . Boro Prez Cashmore and Surrogate McGarey, moving to social Prospect Park South, were tossed a big party other day by James S. Brown Jr., Emerald Assn. head . . . John Giagante, Alfredo's chef, once cooked for the once-King of Italy . . . Henny Youngman heads the new show tonight at the Latin Quarter . . . A record by Der Bingle is making the rounds in which he fluffed his lines to the accompaniment of some torrid swearing . . . Dante's magical melodies at Shore Road Casino music to jive-jaded ears. Popular Joe Doris continues funnyman and MC . . . Closing Jan. 1, Riviera is due to reopen April 1 with a new policy . . . Vicente Gomez, ace guitarist, joins the Blue Angel show tomorrow . . . Clark Underwood, Surf Bar Host, is putting up the shutters throughout January to go fishing down South . . . Irving Jaeger, closing the Little Vienna for New Year's Eve, donated the premises free to alma mater NYU for the senior prom.

MORE EVE PRICES . . . Here are a few spots omitted from the New Year's Eve roundup . . . Brooklyn—Park Vanderbilt, $10, and Maksik's Roadside, $6. Manhattan—Steve Murray's, $10; Old Roumanian, $8, $9 or $10, and Bernstein's, $7.50. Open house at Bamboo Cafe. Prices are per person and include full-course dinners, novelties, etc. "Open house" means the usual prices.

Hunter Has New Adult Courses

New courses, covering a variety of timely and interesting subjects, will be included in the Spring program of the Hunter College evening and extension division, Director Broderick Cohen has announced.

Practical horticulture; the theater of Eugene O'Neill; an advertising laboratory, and an advanced course in Russian are the new adult education courses which have been scheduled thus far.

Other courses new in the evening session in the Spring term will include principles and methods of teaching the blind (second part); introduction to arts of television, radio script writing, the literature of apocrypha and the New Testament, introduction to the theater, international organization, the children's theater, ethnology of Asia, rural sociology, survey of the astronomical universe.

These and other new courses, as well as the comprehensive general program usually offered, will be given at the main building of Hunter College, 68th St. and Park Ave., beginning the week of Feb. 19.

Christmas Play Given at Adelphi

The sixth grade of Adelphi Academy presented a play, "Why the Chimes Rang," Thursday with choral singing by the fourth and fifth grades.

The high school glee club sang Christmas carols in the hall of the high school on Friday at noon, when all parents and friends were invited to be present.

The music in the sixth grade play was under the direction of Isobel Kynoch, formerly of the New England Conservatory of Music, and the teacher of the grade is Miss Jane Gilbert, formerly of the American School in Tokyo, Japan.

John Libby, director of the high school is also organist and choir director of Trinity Episcopal Church of Roslyn.

Berkeley Presents Annual Pageant

The annual Christmas pageant of Berkeley Institute, 181 Lincoln Place, was presented on Friday morning under the direction of the athletic department. Members of the lower school took part in a program that included singing carols and the dance of the Yuletide fairy, while the elementary and intermediate grades joined in presenting the Nativity scene. During the intermission the senior upper school sang a group of carols which had been requested by the students, the faculty, and the lower school parents. With the conclusion of the pageant the holiday vacation began at Berkeley.

Under the general chairmanship of Judith Rubenstein Berkeley's annual Christmas dance will take place on Thursday evening, Dec. 26, at the Savoy-Plaza Hotel, Manhattan. Carol Bierschenk, assisted by Patricia Root, Roanne Wood and Judith Sund are in charge of tickets, while Carol Mahr, Ann Coffeen and Marea Grace will plan the entertainment.

Miss Ina Clayton Atwood, principal of the school; Mrs. Vilhelm Reimann, Mrs. E. Ivan Rubenstein, Mrs. J. B. Mahr, Sally Reimann, vice president of the student association, and Judith Rubenstein will receive the guests.

Christmas Story Told at Packer

The ancient Christmas story of the shepherds and the angel voices from on high was re-enacted this morning in the chapel of the Packer Collegiate Institute by students of the school and junior college. The traditional presentation at Packer is in pantomime with choral accompaniment, after a reading of the Bible story by Dr. Paul D. Shafer, president of Packer.

Those who took leading parts in the presentation were Nancy Merritt, Carol Haff, Beverly Welter, Sally Castleman, Gerda Satzinger, Jean Dedrich, Rosemarie Towbin, Dorothy Wolfe, Sheila Condon and Elaine Duff. Others in the cast were Betsy Flandreau, Lucy Johnson, Jane Page, Patricia Briger, Jane Halsted, Diane Decker, Clare James, Carolyn Sparks, Mildred Anderson, Cynthia Moorehead, Redmond Thayer, Fiske Warren, Anthony Worden, Suzanne Palmieri, Gail Hall, Alice Atherton, Shirley Baraclough, Dolores Dahlinger, Jane Day, Barabara Demarest, Gloria Goyanes, Margaret Johannessen, Phebe Kley and Leila Kassab.

On Thursday night sudents in the choir and glee club of Packer lead a large audience in singing the familiar Christmas carols and also gave a concert of Christmas music, old and new, native and foreign, under the direction of Elizabeth Wright.
